Letters to the Editor

Dear Sir:

I have prepared some quantita tive data on the Walker food service prices. This was done by comparing the prices of the Howard Johnson Daily Specials (on their menu of May 3) with the prices of the Walker equivalent. The Howard Johnson Special includes a choice of soup, main course, dessert, coffee, and beverage. The Walker prices were obtained by adding the price of a cup of soup, milk, and juice to the price of the entree. The Howard Johnson prices are on the average 11.8% higher than those of Howard Johnson. In most cases I have found Walker prices lower than those of Howard Johnson. No one will deny that there exists some disparity in the quality of the meals served, however, I have found Walker dishes to be in favor of Howard Johnson's. As for the money, most of my friends agree that there is as much.
