Joan
(Continued from Page 2) on behind her, in some foreign language. Having had some background in Spanish and French, she could easily translate enough to understand what was being said. Quite often she could hardly keep the chuckles down, but there were moments of embarrassment.

When Miss Guiffre was new here, a group of students used to station themselves outside her door every day at 11 A.M. and 4 P.M., and howl. She didn't appreciate their humor, and that in turn, to a possible date. According to his theory the student stands less chance of an introduction than anyone else. Her manners. She feels that such a well-bred personality, a fellow with his own preference would cater to a polite introduction than anyone else. Her efforts only succeeded in providing a few more laughs.

A Will and a Way

This incident prompted me to ask, "How would a student go about meeting a particular secretary?"

Miss Guiffre had no definite answer to that question, but she did have some suggestions. She remembered that various groups formed clubs, such as the softball team composed of the secretaries from the Bursar's Office, and that some fellows could manage to watch them play or practice. Still others could make acquaintances by listening in the same vicinity as the secretaries, giving them "swelled heads." She understands how the students feel, being away from home, but still criticizes them for sometimes expressing their opinions so boisterously.

Occupational Hygiene

According to Miss Guiffre, a bold approach is an important element in the education of future scientists and engineers. In addition to special departmental seminars, she plans a course in Occupational Hygiene.

Barbell Club

The Barbell Club will hold a contest for the weightlifting championship of the Institute this Saturday, May 19, at 2:00 p.m. in the Harvard Field House Club Room. Anyone in the Institute community is eligible.

Miss Guiffre

Miss Guiffre also feels that the Techmen are spoiling the secretaries by breaching conict. Quite often, the girls forget that they are a minority, and that in turn, to a possible date. According to Miss Guiffre, a bold student stands less chance of an introduction than anyone else. Her own preference would cater to a well-bred personality, a fellow with manners. She feels that such a person would have little trouble making friends, for most girls appreciate politeness, which is too often lacking. On the whole, Miss Guiffre thinks the foreign students show more respect for women than do the American boys with their bristles and howls.

Industrial Hygiene

(Continued from Page 5) related to the job are carefully investigated through interviews and appropriate tests. In all its activities, the Service will work closely with the Institute's safety committee, of which Professor Edward R. Blum is chairman, and with Dr. J. Dusenb, safety engineer.

An additional responsibility of the Occupational Health Service will be to show the Techmen how to protect themselves and those who work with them from unnecessary occupational hazards. This, Dr. Blum believes, is an important element in the education of future scientists and engineers. In addition to special departmental seminars, she plans a course in Occupational Hygiene.
