Intramural Round Up...

With the advice and assistance of man representing 37 of the 40 teams which competed in intramural basketball this season, an all-star team was compiled for each of the six leagues. On most of the choices there was general agreement. Because there were so many teams and players, it is impossible to errata that many good men were passed up in favor of others. In each league ten men were chosen, five on the first team and five on the second. The great number of forfeited games kept each team from playing every game in its league, but each man contacted gave his frank opinion on the merits of the individuals.
