Grads Form Four Committees

The Graduate House Executive Committee, taking the lead in an effort to bring all graduate students into a more active participation in general student activities, announced the formation of four committees.

These committees, which are intended to serve in a broader scope than present Graduate House sub-committees, consist of the Graduate School Athletic Committee, Foreign Student Orientation Committee, Graduate School Committee for Welcoming New Students, and the Graduate School Committee for Alumni Relations. The first of these will be an expansion of the presently-unrowned Graduate School Athletic Committee.

Orientation of Foreign Students

The Foreign Student Orientation Committee will be mainly concerned with correspondence with foreign students before their arrival in this country, and helping them to become acquainted more quickly upon their arrival. The idea for the New Student Welcoming Committee grew out of a Corporation Field last fall. It is hoped that there will be a larger program next fall under the all-student Welcoming Committee.

The Alumni Relations Committee is studying the position of the graduate student as a potential alumnus, with a view to modifying the present system of lumping graduate students with the "class" of the year in which they receive their degree.
