Discrimination In Group Charters Discussed by Institute Committee

Committee Formed To Report

Conclusions After New Year

Discriminatory regulations in the charters of activities and living groups on campus was the main point of discussion in the student government's Student-Faculty Committee last Tuesday. The Finance Committee reported a list of recommendations for the consideration of the student government. Approval of the student government would be necessary for the creation of four new living groups on campus.

Motion concerning discrimination, proposed by Sheldon Dick, 54, was that the Institute appoint a sub-committee to investigate discriminatory restrictions on members or constitutions of living groups, where discrimination means preferential treatment on the basis of race, religion, or color; or selecting members, that these investigations be made with the mind of enabling those groups to remove restrictions, that this committee be requested to report to the Institute Committee no later than the first meeting following the Christmas vacation.

Motion Reconsidered

The motion concerning discrimination was approved by majority vote of the Student-Faculty Committee last Tuesday. The motion was defeated on the proposal of Bennett Sack, '54, because of the feeling of those present that the motion was subject to conflicting interpretations.

The final vote was read at the first only at the main Institute bulletin board and the second part read that “the committee shall consist of five members appointed by the president of the Institute Committee.” Further proposals of the committee will be submitted on a later date.

Previous Motion Similar

Last spring a similar motion was presented by Professor Wiener, who is the news director of WMIT and now a student at the University of California. His motion had been rejected for lack of organization with discriminatory regulations.

A Finance Board report was accepted and included as part of the above.
