Incomming Acts On Discrimination; Forms Comm. To Report On Charges Against New Students About Them

FRANK BRENNYAN '56

Institute Committee passed only one motion at Wednesday's meeting. A motion to consider and act on the problem of discriminatory clauses in some national fraternity conventions was approved. The motion, in essence, forms a subcommittee of the Institute Committee, with compiling and publishing information in regard to discrimination in the fraternities.

Primarily, the proposal is designed to organize incoming freshmen, so that they can face through rush week, with the problem of discriminatory clauses, and where they may expect to find them.

A Short History

Readers of THE TECH may remember the controversy over discrimination that has been on campus. At the beginning of the fall of 1952, a motion was defeated which would have forced the fraternities to get rid of their discriminatory clauses. A motion to be presented at the beginning of January 1953, the committee report, states the committee to study the situation, made its final report. It is submitted, at the time a motion which would have required the fraternities to be within, to within the next 24 hours, the public. The public will also get to rid of their discriminatory clauses.

It is probable that many students would support TECH because they have little or no previous newspaper experience and is definitely not that necessary.
