Promotions on the Faculty of the Institute have been announced. A Dean and two assistant deans to the rank of full professor are Ray- mond L. Bishop of Wellswells Hall, appointed associate dean; Patrick M. Hurley of Leyden House, dean of the school of electrical engineering; Blanche E. Manion of Lewis Hall, dean of the school of mechanical engineering; Herbert H. Higginbotham, of the school of chemistry; chin-Chi Lin of Belmont, professor of mathematics; Milton C. Gage, of the school of geological and chemical engineering; Charles P. Bacon of Baker House, faculty deans; and Martin Dutch of Safford Hall, department of physics.

Assistant professors promoted to the rank of associate professor are Robert E. Mueller of Newton, department of aeronautical engineering; John G. Willey of Seymour Hall, department of chemical engineering; Walter F. Dean of Arlington, department of chemistry; Merle A. Ackerson of Hopewell Hall, department of economics and social studies; Alexander K. Brown of Brighton and William P. Andrews of the department of electrical engineering; Herbert E. Wood of the school of business; and William J. Shaw of the school of nuclear management.

Benjamin L. Aafelson of Cambridge, chairman of the faculty personnel committee, has announced that the promotion and tenure committee, composed of Malcolm W. P. Strand of Cambridge, school of industrial management; Patrick A. Hurley of Lechmere Hall, department of economics; and Paul E. Smith, Jr., of Littleton, all of the school of management, will list candidates for the rank of associate professor at the meeting of the faculty on Thursday, May 1. At that meeting, the promotion and tenure committee will list candidates for the rank of full professor, and the faculty will consider the nominations for the rank of full professor on Tuesday, May 27.

Promotions to the rank of assistant professor are Howard P. Jenerick of the school of aeronautical engineering; Fazlollah M. Reza of the school of mechanical engineering; and Malcolm W. P. Strand of Cambridge, school of industrial management.

The promotion of Arthur B. King, whose name the award is given in his memory, to the rank of associate professor in the department of English and history, was announced at the meeting of the faculty on Thursday, May 1.

Staff Promotions Announced; Dormitory Committee Debate Tentative Dormitory Regulations

Promotions on the Faculty of the Institute have been announced. A Dean and two assistant deans to the rank of full professor are Raymond L. Bishop of Wellswells Hall, appointed associate dean; Patrick M. Hurley of Leyden House, dean of the school of electrical engineering; Blanche E. Manion of Lewis Hall, dean of the school of mechanical engineering; Herbert H. Higginbotham, of the school of chemistry; Chin-Chi Lin of Belmont, professor of mathematics; Milton C. Gage, of the school of geological and chemical engineering; Charles P. Bacon of Baker House, faculty deans; and Martin Dutch of Safford Hall, department of physics.

Assistant professors promoted to the rank of associate professor are Robert E. Mueller of Newton, department of aeronautical engineering; John G. Willey of Seymour Hall, department of chemical engineering; Walter F. Dean of Arlington, department of chemistry; Merle A. Ackerson of Hopewell Hall, department of economics and social studies; Alexander K. Brown of Brighton and William P. Andrews of the department of electrical engineering; Herbert E. Wood of the school of business; and William J. Shaw of the school of nuclear management.

Benjamin L. Aafelson of Cambridge, chairman of the faculty personnel committee, has announced that the promotion and tenure committee, composed of Malcolm W. P. Strand of Cambridge, school of industrial management; Patrick A. Hurley of Lechmere Hall, department of economics; and Paul E. Smith, Jr., of Littleton, all of the school of management, will list candidates for the rank of associate professor at the meeting of the faculty on Thursday, May 1. At that meeting, the promotion and tenure committee will list candidates for the rank of full professor, and the faculty will consider the nominations for the rank of full professor on Tuesday, May 27.

Promotions to the rank of assistant professor are Howard P. Jenerick of the school of aeronautical engineering; Fazlollah M. Reza of the school of mechanical engineering; and Malcolm W. P. Strand of Cambridge, school of industrial management.

The promotion of Arthur B. King, whose name the award is given in his memory, to the rank of associate professor in the department of English and history, was announced at the meeting of the faculty on Thursday, May 1.