Dormitory Rules

1. Violation of the Open House rules described on the following page.
2. Possession, sale or distribution of narcotics or other contraband, as defined by state law, is for-} dbidden.
3. Damage, destruction, or illegitimate use of property of the Institute or any other facility.
4. Use or storage of chemicals or ammunition within any dormitory building.

The Dormitory Judicial Committee, whose members are elected by the women of the dormitories, will be called upon to handle such cases as are not serious enough for action by the Full-Day Board.

The Full-Day Board

"To preserve some of the dormitory system, especially before Field Day, the Dormitory Committee has passed the following motion with enthusiasm and hope.

Group demonstrations, specifically directed toward influencing the women of the external dormitories, within the dormitory buildings are to be discouraged, as they are a deterrent influence on student otions and often result in property damage. Any person taking part in such a demonstration within the dormitory buildings will be expelled from his room, and his possessions will be sent to the dormitory offices.

The Dormitory Rules

"The Open House hours specify the time during which women are permitted to enter and leave the dormitories. The presence of women in the dormitories at any other time will be sued.

Research in the physics laboratories at the Institute has produced evidence that an actual collision of nuclear particiles is not necessary for a nuclear reaction; the particles can reach even though they merely brush each part.
