Tech's varsity cross-country team has started to prepare for the forty-second All-East Conference championship that will be run over the four-mile course at Franklin Field on November 9. Rhode Island will be the defending champion, with Tech hoping to move up to first place this year after their strong finish last year in second place.

This fall the varsity team should be stronger because the freshmen of last year who won the NEICAA Freshmen championships over the University of Maine are putting the varsity numbers for places on the 1953 team.

Capt. Jack Fansburgh, number one on last year's team, is again setting a fast pace in leading the harriers around the flat course on Briggs Field. Chasing him are Hugh Nisley, Larry Bernett, Carl Swansen, Van Williamson, Harry Schiffbein, and Stuart Smith of the 1952 squad. However, the novices up from the 1953 championship team, Ray Smith, Dave Palmquist, Jack Bondi, Madge Geppert, and Pete Korn will be giving them lots of competition.

Tech opens its season with Tufts on October 10 over the course at Medford, followed by Boston College, Brown University, Holy Cross, and the University of New Hampshire. Although he didn't wish to make any prediction about the first meet, Coach Hedlund observed that last year we won over Tufts by a score of 17-41.

Fresh Prospects Encouraging

Tech's fresh of 1952 have set up a good record for the incoming class to live up to, and from what the new class has shown already, last year's feat should be repeated in this fall's big meet on Nov. 9. So far twenty boys have reported to Coach Hedlund.

TOWARD WORLD BROTHERHOOD

by Joseph Irvin Arnold, A.B. (Centre College), A.M. (Columbia University), Ph.D. (Harvard University), Th.M. (Southern Baptist Theological Seminary)

This book defends six thesis:

1. Refusing to exercise itself officially or to face_ searching questions by others, a religious sect is gradually and lastly cut off and isolated from experience caused to both the scheduled team.

2. A great proportion of the resources of each sect, given in name of religion, is wastefully used up in just keeping alive and in maintaining meetings at 7:30, running races.

3. Unless Christianity, Judaism, Islam, Hinduism, Buddhism, and other sects are merged into or replaced by a great World Brotherhood, sectarianism will continue to divide the world, isolate peoples, and stunt life and suffering.

4. In order to understand the basic evaluation of each belief, the religious needs of individuals and communities.

5. Religious life should and will be integrated in a new World Brotherhood which should and will absorb or replace existing sects.

6. The Intelligently religion, knowing that religious preferences which divide people into sects are the result of confusion in understanding the true nature of childhood rather than of the truth, introduces superiority or inferiority of any sects will not influence to change in the race of God.

Comments by reviewers of the book include:

"You have struck a nerve deep and true in the problem of world organization and unity. In fact I think the most important aspect of what is the most influential educational system."

"I agree with every word in the book."—Carl C. Taylor, former president of the American Sociological Society.

"If you read the book, you will be able to see the most important aspect of what is likely to be the most influential educational system."

"I am the most important aspect of what is the most influential educational system."

"I agree with every word in the book."—Carl C. Taylor, former president of the American Sociological Society.

T.E.N. SMOKER

Cigarettes are an important part of modern life, and their use has become widespread. In fact, they are now considered a necessity for many people. However, there are concerns about the health risks associated with smoking. This advertisement highlights the importance of not smoking and the negative effects it can have on one's health.

The advertisement encourages people to quit smoking and offers various resources and support to help those who are trying to quit. It also promotes a clean and healthy lifestyle, emphasizing the benefits of being smoke-free.

The advertisement includes a toll-free phone number for individuals who are interested in quitting smoking, as well as information about local smoking cessation programs and support groups. It also encourages people to think about the impact of smoking on their health and the health of those around them.

"Smoking is a major health risk, and it affects not only the smoker but also their loved ones. quitting smoking can improve your health and the health of those around you. If you are thinking about quitting, please call 1-800-QUIT-NOW to get the support you need to make a healthy change."