Senators, Richard Cesnys, '54; Alan Finkel, '54; Bernard Most, '54; Elmer Cronin, '54.

In the Baker House office, 227, a large crowd was on hand for the elections. There were 212 votes cast in the first round; 198 votes cast in the second round; 187 votes cast in the third round. The House Miller was Lawrence Holmes, '55.

Financial Charges

The meeting of the House Committee was held Wednesday evening by a resolution of the individual rooms and by a decision of Dorm Rules by John Seiler, '55.

The motion to create separate bank accounts for each individual was designed to simplify the procedure of handling bills.

John Seiler, '55, Chairman of the Dorm Committee, had this to say: "In the Dorm Rules and said that the enforcement of the rules was entirely up to the House Committee.

Because of the frequent complaints from the students regarding the bills being sent out with the lab coats, a motion was made and passed to have the bills sent out with the personal coats. The individual mail box from now on. Discussion about the present system which the jumpsuit was deemed to be the lack of planning so that each coat was kept.

Since the issue is postponed to the next meeting, it is to be watched by everyone. It is crucial that every student be aware of the coming changes.

Robert L. Baker, '55, Chairman appointed a new banking system with a chassis. After a lively and explicit debate, the motion was defeated.

CLASS OF '57 COEDS RELATE INITIAL IMPRESSIONS OF INSTITUTE

The view and mood of style of the college coeds are interviewed in their view of the freshman class. There are interviewed the following orphans lambs of the Class of '50: by Emma Dumas, '56, and Maria Baker, '57.

Imagine yourself the only boy in a all-girls coed's class and what might be the noose of the situation confronting the fifteen seniors, but defined "Techmen" in this year's freshmen class.

Now the Tech is about to give you a private, exclusive indentation to each one of you, and for only five minutes, a brief and sincere problem as the question of the future and to know what the grey matter is. None of the coeds come to the evening discussions thinking up a line for an introduction.

The majority of us are sticking to the "straight and narrow" path--as in on the river or another. Those of us in these classes are Carla Marie, Phyllis Jenkins, Martha Karpati, Mary Jane, Joyce Ruhlin, Martha Sifnas, and Betty Sylvia. Our two future architects are Shirley O'Dwyer and Virginia Burman. The many courses have captured Nancy Greige and Emma Dumas, while Maria Baker is registered under the General Science courses.

We hail from the northeast--New York, Massachusetts, Canada, and New Jersey. We come from astro-physicists to puppy dogs and pets--to French food--to的世界, future architects, Shirley O'Dwyer and Virginia Burman, the many courses have captured Nancy Greige and Emma Dumas, while Maria Baker is registered under the General Science courses.

Baker Newspaper

"The Baker Letter"

Makes Initial Bow

Last week a brand-new campus journal, the Baker Letter, was first issued to residents of Baker House. The newspaper, a bi-weekly on the style of the Kiplinger Letter, and is distributed free at the Baker desk. It is for students living in the Baker dormitory. It is designed for use by any student living in the Baker dormitory. It is for students living in the Baker dormitory.

The first issue of the letter was a story concerning the President's Committee and its steps taken to relieve this situation.
