Captain Sullivan Given Farewell At Hotel Bancroft

Last Thursday night, Captain William Sullivan of the Aeronautical Department was given a farewell at the Hotel Bancroft.

Mr. Sullivan is leaving to go to the Institute of Technology in New York. A large group of his friends gathered around the hotel to bid farewell to him. The party consisted of a group of students and faculty members. A farewell address was given by Professor Edward E. Smith, who is a member of the faculty at MIT. The address was followed by a toast to Captain Sullivan, and the party continued with songs and dancing.

The evening was filled with good wishes and goodbyes. Many of the guests expressed their hopes that Captain Sullivan would have a successful career in his new endeavors. The party ended with a group picture taken in front of the hotel.
