most students mistakenly labelling the entire deferment situation handled by the local boards required to reconsider the classification of each student after they have had a chance to make their determinations. In other words, students who want to request continuation of Class 2-F should feel free to write to their local boards.

The appointment of the four visiting professors involves research in the field of international studies. The work is concentrated, according to Professor Miller, under various aspects of capital formation and on the emergent alignment of political forces as conditioned by sources of political and social friction. The research is being planned by a committee of the Foundation.

Before going to the University of Illinois as Professor of Economics in 1945, Dr. Hagen was chief rural analyst in the Office of Public Assistance and Rural Employment (1946-1948) and a member of the staff of the Council of Economic Advisers of the Federal Reserve System (1943-1945).

For many years, from 1943 to 1950, Dr. Higginson was a member of the faculty of Tufts College, and then the chairman of the Economics Department, as Professor of Economics.

Dr. Mackey has been associated with the Department of State since 1945, first as special assistant to the Undersecretary of State for Political and Economic Affairs (1946-1948) and then as chief of the Division of International and E x t e r n a l Intelligence. During World War II it served as deputy chief of staff of the Office of Strategic Services (O.S.S.).
