CALENDAR OF EVENTS from September 28 through October 6, 1954

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 28
Food Technology Department, Food Industry Seminar: "Problems of Underwater Food Production." Mr. J. Richards Nelson, President of Ellsworth Oyster Co., American Oyster Institute. Room 6-1510, 1:00-4:00 p.m.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 29
Young Republican Club. First fall meeting. Room 5-230, 5:00 p.m.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 30
Fencing Team. Open for freshmen interested in fencing. Walker Gymnasium, 5:00 p.m.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 1
Mechanical Engineering Department, Seminar: "Review of Theory and Experiment in Metal Cutting." Prof. Milton C. Shaw. Room 6-1510, 1:00-2:00 p.m.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 2
M.I.T. is going to have its first Dormitory Acquaintance Dance in the bust of Bob Adams 8-15 orchestras. The festivities will start at 8:30 p.m., and admission will be $1.00 for Techies and $1.50 for socials. Room 3-26. Guests are invited.

ENTERTAINMENT
International Student Association, 23 Garden Street, Cambridge. "The Light Brackets Group" is going to present "Wolfgang Borchert: The Man Outside," a dramatic presentation of an East German courtroom scene, at 8:30 p.m. and two play productions on Saturday night. Admission: $1.00 per person.

The NFA and the T.C.A. for tickets.

The case of the stuck-up salesman

When police arrived at the college hamburger, they should back heads in situation around the greaser and bound, the salesman—actually glued to the floor. They took quick stock of the clues... an empty glue pot, several odd-shaped pieces of cloth scattered about, an empty shoe-can, three empty clay ashes. Ingenious alibi? "Giggle greg," said the salesman, still stuck-up... no matter what! He could not have been.

When they finally got him excrected with fresh water and dressed, the greaser explained, and added, "I was simply making the demonstration of the Van Heusen Century shirt for some of the students. I hope you'll excuse me, you jerk." He was so overjoyed, he did a little jig and tripped over the greaser.

(Special Item)

The case of the stuck-up salesman

When police arrived at the college hamburger, they should back heads in situation around the greaser and bound, the salesman—actually glued to the floor. They took quick stock of the clues... an empty glue pot, several odd-shaped pieces of cloth scattered about, an empty shoe-can, three empty clay ashes. Ingenious alibi? "Giggle greg," said the salesman, still stuck-up... no matter what! He could not have been.

When they finally got him excrected with fresh water and dressed, the greaser explained, and added, "I was simply making the demonstration of the Van Heusen Century shirt for some of the students. I hope you'll excuse me, you jerk." He was so overjoyed, he did a little jig and tripped over the greaser.

(Special Item)

The case of the stuck-up salesman

When police arrived at the college hamburger, they should back heads in situation around the greaser and bound, the salesman—actually glued to the floor. They took quick stock of the clues... an empty glue pot, several odd-shaped pieces of cloth scattered about, an empty shoe-can, three empty clay ashes. Ingenious alibi? "Giggle greg," said the salesman, still stuck-up... no matter what! He could not have been.

When they finally got him excrected with fresh water and dressed, the greaser explained, and added, "I was simply making the demonstration of the Van Heusen Century shirt for some of the students. I hope you'll excuse me, you jerk." He was so overjoyed, he did a little jig and tripped over the greaser.