Inscom Votes To Issue Compton Speech Exceots, Rides Motion Reconsidered

For the past several meetings, Inscom has been considering an appropriate response to Compton's speeches. At its last meeting, the committee voted to sponsor the publication of a booklet containing excerpts from speeches made during the Compton era. This booklet, titled "A Scientist Speaks," will contain many of his ideas about the relation of science to other fields of thought and endeavor. Inscom will distribute copies of this booklet to all members of the student body.

All Dorms Select Policies For Ensuing Year

All three dormitory house committees have recently begun to hold regular weekly meetings for the selection of house policies for the ensuing year. The present competition is open to United States citizens and to all persons residing permanently in the United States, regardless of age. The committee is interested in selecting persons of high moral character to be their dormitory house committee.

FRESHMAN MIXERS

The Student-Faculty Committee is now announcing the Freshman Mixers, which are informal get-togethers between freshmen and their instructors, in the Student-Faculty Lounge. Section leaders will proudly display the colors of the day and time. Refreshments will be served.

Professor Troost Receives Award From Holland

Professor Laurens Troost, professor of Damen Naval Architecture and Marine Engineering at the Institute, has been awarded the Dutch Medal of Honor for Naval Architecture and Maritime Engineering by the Algemeen Nederlandersch Instituut voor Technieken in Its first presentation since the award was established.

Professor Troost, a native of Rotterdam, was honored for his international recognition for his achievements as a naval architect and marine engineer. Professor Troost made his first visit to the United States in 1940 as a guest of the United States Navy. In 1941 he was invited by MIT to join its staff as a consultant in the naval architecture and ship development projects during the latter part of World War II.

After serving as head of the Institute in 1952 as head of the Department of Naval Architecture and Marine Engineering, Professor Troost continued to remain at MIT, training as well as the graduate students and faculty members of the department.

Judson Warns Against Rides

After serious concerns, the Institute Committee passed the following motion on October 15, 1954.

"The Executive Committee of InScrom shall promptly use every possible means of publicizing the contents and intent of this motion."

As a corollary to this motion, the following was MSP at the same meeting:

"The Judicial Committee of Inscom shall promptly use every possible means of publicizing the contents and intent of this motion."

The Judicial Committee feels that sufficient time has passed for most students to be aware of this motion. This is the only possible exception being the case of 1955, we feel that this notice will serve to inform that group.

Therefore, it will be the policy of the Judicial Committee to take immediate action on any further violations of this motion.
