Commons Meals Committee Reports Changes In Services

In a two-and-a-half-hour meeting Thursday between the Commons Meals Committee and Mr. Colin Maclean and Mr. John Sheets, representing the dining service, a number of the recommendations which the committee formulated last spring were adopted. The Commons Committee, in its meeting of Dick Pekos '47, Sherer Underhill '48, and Gerry Quinn '46, was apprised of the changes resulting from the recommendations.

The following recommendations will be put into effect as soon as the halls have been worked out:

Dessert Choice—As an ice cream option will be offered on all commons lunches and dinners in place of the regular dessert.

Push-Carts—Portable deserts need not be picked up after a student has finished his meal. If it proves necessary, a dessert check system will be devised.

Meal Transfers—A student may eat a commons meal in a dining hall other than his own by filling out a guest card provided he is with a friend who eats commons in the hall to which he is transferring his meal. The meal will then be charged against the dining hall in which the student is regularly registered.

Late Dinner—Late dinner, if reserved in advance, will be served complete. The dining service promises that late dinners be reserved only when absolutely necessary.

Future Complaints—Dining officials expressed their desire to keep abreast of student likes and dislikes. It was decided that future discussions should be conducted on a local level, each dining hall stewards appointed by Deans in April to work out additional recommendations. Maclean and Mr. Sheets will attend these meetings.

Elden Bailey, 84, acting as spokesman for the committee, stated, "A willingness to try out new ideas on an experimental basis in one dining hall at a time was expressed. It will be up to the House Committees to take the initiative in having such trials made in their own dining halls." The university recommendations that have to be worked out on a local basis, including such things as sandwich options with hot bread and the improvement of soft drink service
