Staff Players To Present Arthur Miller’s "Crucible"

From February 16 to February 20 the Staff Players will present The Crucible, by Arthur J. Miller. Tickets for the four scheduled performances were sold rapidly, and additional performances have been scheduled for Sunday.

The play is a reenactment of the Salem witch trials of 1692 and involves ten innocent people caught up in the hysteria of the time. The events and characters are taken from historical records of the period.

Not only is this the first play to be produced in the new auditorium, but it is the first time that an amateur group, the Staff Players, has been permitted to perform The Crucible within the Boston area.

It is only fitting that this group should not only initiate our new auditorium with a New York Critics’ Circle award play, but also dedicate it to the memory of two local media figures: "Justice" and "Siberia".

Mailing lists may be purchased in Building No. 10. All performances will begin at eight-thirty sharp in the little theater of Kresge Auditorium.

What young people are doing at General Electric

Young specialist in community relations makes friends in 101 plant cities

General Electric now has 131 plants in 101 cities, and one problem is common to all: How can the company show people in every community that it is a good neighbor? His job: Consultant, Program Services in Plant Community Relations.

Mccarty's assignment is to help each of the 23,000 college-graduate employees find the work he does best, and to realize his full potential. For General Electric has long believed this: When fresh young minds are given freedom to make progress, everybody benefits — the individual, the company, and the country.
