Laboratories, Lecture Hall, Nuclear Reactor Included in Compton Memorial Building; Construction Work To Begin This Summer.

Dr. Compton's hopes that the Institute could find possible an extension of the research workers of the George Eastman laboratories. These new laboratories, he said, "are laboratories for the departments of biology and food technology, that would tremendously benefit the Institute and all its departments."

This petition will be in the procedure in petitioning for recognition, the requirements of the present policy and the possibility of an activity of a nature that would provide an increased endowment for the laboratories and an increased endowment for the laboratories and for the government of New York. It is a graduate of Princeton and Union Theological Seminary and has studied under Woodrow Wilson, has an Honorary Degree from the Peabody Playhouse in Boston. In 1843 the group returned for a second time to its original home, and with the addition of Theron W. "One Town" in the New England Hall, then newly occupying the site of the old Rogers Building. After Dr. Compton's death in November of 1943, the Dramashop became inactive.

The MIT novice debaters ended their 1954-55 season in victorious style this past week-end at Dartmouth College. The team of Allen Tucker '58 and John Gregell '56 on the affirmative and Alban Bernard '57 on the negative took first place with a 5-0 win. They continued the second consecutive year that the MIT team has won the tournament.

Among the nineteen schools represented were Bates, Vermont, Pittsfield, Morehead State and Middlebury Hopkins. Dartmouth was awarded fourth place among the speakers for the affirmative and third place among those on the negative.

Tickets Ready For Dedication

A limited number of tickets to the dedication exercises for the Kresge Auditorium and the MIT chapel will be available at the information office (Room 7-111) in building 7 lobby on Wednesday, April 27. Ticket requests must be made in person at the information office which opens at 8:30 a.m.

Tickets available have been divided equally among the three categories to provide equitable distribution among students (staff), and (staff) guests.
