The Tech
OFFICIAL NEWSPAPER OF THE UNDERGRADUATES OF THE MASSACHUSETTS INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY
VOL. 21, NO. 21
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS, TUESDAY, MAY 3, 1955
5 CENTS
9 Students Arrested Sunday Night; Fire and Water Highlights Of Riot

by Bill Daly '58 and Lee Halloway '58

In line with the recent trends towards a more democratic form of expression and to celebrate the first National Loyalty Day, several hundred enthusiastic Teclets gathered together last Sunday evening and celebrated. At 9:00 p.m. until 3:00 a.m., its beginnings on East Campus, and attempted to quell the festivities. Nineteen students were arrested and one police officer was injured during the altercation.

Early in the evening several East Campus residents started a little In, certain Lamb (The Nation of Faust) consequently the first half of the glee clubs, and less in the music. Fortunately not in the mood for really good singing, the glee clubs couldn't have been graced with the imppression of great strength and self-confidence.

The MIT Glee Club suffered occasionally, which didn't help. The middle voices were often overpowering and tended to make the lower of the group monotonous. And the first tenors needed more development and control. The first individual voices stood out. White, dry, and unconvincing singing was quite a contrast. But the Glee Club is very well culled and gives the impression of great strength and self-confidence.

by William J. Abston '56

The Glee Club of Mount Holyoke College, with the MIT Symphony Orchestra, presented a combined concert in the Kresge Auditorium last Saturday, April 30. The program was:

The audience, which for the most part was very well dressed, was unfortunately not in the mood for really serious music. It resembled more a clean concert than a recital. The people showed little interest in the glee clubs, and less in the recital. Consequently, the first half of the program, which was expected to be fun and Beethovenian, was received with a certain emptiness.

The second half of the program will really be the heart of the concert. Unfortunately, it revealed the excellent training of the glee clubs and how well they could combine into a tight ensemble. Even though the sections were split in halves, the double choir for the Bach number, there was no real weakness apparent in either section.

A rather shaky beginning in the Brahms work, the orchestra played adequately, though sometimes out of tune.

The Holyoke Glee Club was very well balanced, though in the eliminations the first sopranos had to tend to overpower their voices and lose resonance. Fitch was no problem and their base color was rich and always varied. Their dictions were crisp and their voices pleasingly pleasant. They sang with authority and ease.

The MIT Glee Club suffered occasionally, which didn't help. The middle voices were often overpowering and tended to make the lower of the group monotonous. And the first tenors needed more development and control. The first individual voices stood out. White, dry, and unconvincing singing was quite a contrast. But the Glee Club is very well culled and gives the impression of great strength and self-confidence.

Tenderfoot Magazine To Appear Friday Featuring Discussion of Auditorium

The Friday will bring the initial issue of the new magazine to the MIT area. Its name is Tenderfoot. The idea of this magazine is to present the many different aspects of life at the Institute, both seen by the student and as created by him. The first issue of Tenderfoot is dedicated to the recently completed Kresge Auditorium. Since its completion, this auditorium has become an important part of the community. The first issue is printed to bring these two ideas closer together and to provide a perspective on the future of the Institute.

This literary edition will be out next weeks hence. With a reasonable expectation and the continued sales, this will not be the last you will see of Tenderfoot.

MIT And Mount Holyoke Glee Clubs Present Combined Concert With Symphony Orchestra

The Holyoke Glee Club, under the direction of Ronald Douglass of Holyoke and Klaus Liepold of Northwestern University, will present a concert at 5:00 p.m. in the Library Lounge 14 E 310 at 5:15 p.m.

DEDICATION TICKETS
A very few additional tickets for the dedication ceremonies on Sunday, May 8, will be available. The MIT Symphony Orchestra will present four numbers, under the auspices of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship, Mr. Castle will speak. The literary edition will be out at the same time, to achieve entertaining and educational effects.

ASTRONOMICAL SOCIETY
There will be an open meeting of the Astronomical Society on Wednesday at 5:15 p.m. in Room E 108.

Politics of Confusion Topic of Lecture Given By Thomas

Norman Thomas, head of the Socialist Party of the United States and six-time candidate for President, addressed an audience of over a thousand in Kresge Auditorium last Friday evening, May 2. The lecture, given under the auspices of Lecture Series Committees, was entitled 'The Politics of Confusion'.

With wit and insight, Mr. Thomas cited what he called the three great problems which face our generation: the depletion of resources versus the growing population, the armament race, and the protection of civil liberties.

He termed the problem of resources and population the heart of all our social organisation and development, independent of the existence of Communism, and abetted an historic outline of its growth. No longer, he pointed out, can we rely on the "pioneer" solution to this problem.

The situation is a "balancing act" of tension, the situation of a "tension-laden" society. We must be careful, he said, less in the interest of our people than this cannot be an act of wishful thinking. He must we expand our present solutions. The Communists, he said, must meet with the Communists who are the solution to this problem.

He pictured the cold war as a "balancing of terror", the situation of a "tension-laden" society. We must be careful, he said, less in the interest of our people than this cannot be an act of wishful thinking. He must we expand our present solutions. The Communists, he said, must meet with the Communists who are the solution to this problem.

The apostle and sometimes bigoted editor of the Pacifica radio bought by the religious leaders of the country, has emerged as a great danger to our civil liberties as well as a real threat to our foreign policy. From the pages of the"national"Pacificas, where one cannot hope to find the "liberal" outlook, one can assume that we have a friendly enemy. The threat of American civil liberties, he

(Continued on page 4)

A police Tactical at the Central Square police station, where the arrested students were taken.