Queen To Preside Over JP Weekend

MIT has a brand new feature designed to upgrade the scope of social life. One is a "school weekend" where the host "Big-Trip" tradition. The other is an event during the festivities during the weekend. This year weekend has been supplemented from two already popular events, the Junior Prom and Field Day, with an all-campus cocktail party at Baker after the Glove Fight as a bonus. The "Junior Prom-Field Day" (their official title) will be chosen and revealed during the Junior Prom. They will preside over Field Day and the information will be released at the same time.

President of the Public Relations Committee, Allen Arrows, stated that the idea for a queen originated from a meeting last May involving the former chairman of the PR Committee and Jeff Wylie, Director of Public Relations for the Institute. Wylie is a former member of the Junior Prom Committee, as was Arrows. He also stated that the idea for a queen would make better press for the school.

In addition, it was felt that MIT lacked a cohesive weekend long social affair, and the opportunity was seen to unify Field Day and the Junior Prom. These two events have been combined.

The idea for the Junior Prom-Field Day weekend will be the face of one of the new events. The ticket sales will begin in any Junior and will originate from one window from that time on until 5:00 p.m.

On the following day (Friday), general ticket sales will begin from one window only, with the restrictions on the number of tickets opening a new first to sixth tickets.

There shall be no refunds after the purchase is made.

The only refunds will be given if the ticket is sold and 100% from the price of the ticket is returned.

The plan was the result of considering the plan only continues the tac-...
