Under our present system we have taken away any undue advantage held by the frazzled in past years. The Editors by now might have sensed the irrepressible, as far as S. P. is concerned, spirit of enthusiasm and co-operation generated among dormitory studies here. Not one of our system.

Field Day draws near; Sophomores glitz and freshmen tremble. Few freshman hope for victory. But let the poor unfortunate take heart: there is hope. The Ambrose Shofer reports that miracles do happen; the

Ambrose Shofer have completely enshrined their myth.

The great date was Sunday, September 21st; the place, Tyler Pond on the Ambrose campus; the event, the annual inter-class rope pull (Sound familiar?) Three hundred freshmen opposed thirty valiant sophomores.

However, at first the freshmen had no advantage, for the sophes were setting two stout trees as "anchor men".

The soph strategy seemed sure to result in a tie and a terrific moral victory for the outnumbered '58 team; however, after much vain straining, the fresh came to the conclusion that something unusual was going on.

A patrol was immediately sent into enemy territory, armed with a pen-knife. The story is history! The Class of '58 awarded the victory, and a
