Rockets Research Society Extracts Facts And Data From Test Jets; Automatic Control Improves Help

University of Southern California
University of Arizona
Tucson
University of California at Los Angeles
Hughes

Cooperative Fellowship Program for Master of Science Degrees

This program is designed to enable outstanding graduate students in Electrical Engineering, Mechanical Engineering, and Physics located in the Southern California area, to pursue graduate degrees while retaining full-time employment. The requirements for this program are: 1) Graduate student must be enrolled in a Master's degree program at the University of Southern California, 2) Graduate student must be employed full-time by Hughes, 3) Graduate student must be employed full-time by Hughes, 4) Graduate student must be employed full-time by Hughes, 5) Graduate student must be employed full-time by Hughes.

Hughes's experience will provide the participant with a valuable research and development environment. This experience will be in the areas of: 1) Electronic Warfare Systems, 2) Electronic Countermeasures Systems, 3) Radar Systems, 4) Aerospace Systems, 5) Nuclear Systems.

Application form and instructions for all interested persons should be directed to: Hughes Fellowship Committee, 4220 Sepulveda Boulevard, El Segundo, California 90245.