The MIT project on Soviet education is under the direction of Alexander G. Kostov, who was born in 1929 and has been working on it since 1953. The project is aimed at understanding the educational system and its impact on Soviet society.

The project is conducted in the 10-250 lecture hall and is free and open to the public. The lectures are given by experts in the field of Soviet education and provide insights into the workings of the Soviet educational system.

The project is supported by the Carnegie Corporation of New York and has the cooperation of the American Council on Education.

The project is scheduled to run from April 2 to May 30, and interested parties are encouraged to attend the lectures to gain a deeper understanding of the Soviet educational system. The project is an important contribution to the understanding of the Soviet educational system and its impact on society.
