The old army game

Recently the Executive Committee of the MIT Undergraduate Association released a statement of their policy on hazing. As of yet, Institute Committee has made no vote on the matter, but are still in the discussion stage. The resolution would permit hazing within the bounds of the various living groups, but if any one steps out of their own building, would liable to severe discipline.

This resolution appears to be another inclusive move on the part of the Executive Committee that shows the rebellious nature of the student government at MIT. The matter of hanging has been a failing of two Institute Committees and if this is continued, it will quickly be apparent that your overhead is extremely high. Nobody came along with a solution to the problem. Half way student test the rulings or drop the whole matter. Half way student test the rulings or drop the whole matter.
