Sunday Evening April 28 at 8 P.M.
AARON COPLAND
"Music in Contemporary Life"
(Adapted by the students and instrumentalists from Bates University under the direction of Miss Sarah Cushing)

FORD HALL FORUM

GO, VAN, GOGH!

by Sarah Cushing

One upon a time, when the world was really evil, and a nightmare behind every bush, ordinary men had their shirts painted on! The reason for this was explained by a perceptive wretch of those days:

"Forsooth, nothing deters the rapscallions about town.

Rough days — particularly for the shirt business, what with painters picking up all its faults. Until, suddenly, in lieu of genius appeared. This bottom-down shirt! This shirt was actually bottomed on the idea of the wearer, making it literally steal-proof!

Today, in these honest times, the true ancestor of that gloriously button down — the shirt with the button down collar! Isn't history interesting?

Van Heusen — because they know so much about the button down — has done more with it than anybody else. Take our new line called the Van Ivy, for instance. Here are button-downs in tartan checks and stripes. Van Ivy look marvelous with suits and sport coats, and worn open at the neck give you a roguish look. They also have a button-down shirt that is buttoned on the back! Isn't his collar! The reason for this — the shirt is buttoned on the back.

Well, back to that old gambling custom often used but seldom effective, heavy on the stick.

Next morning our hero found himself out at the inn... and lo, below him was the Pacific Ocean. "Man, that ain't " dew, " he cried aloud, "that is an ocean of much magnitude!"

A long time ago there was a grade A explorer named V. N. Balboa. Like a pogo stick with a hot foot, he hopped from place to place, discovering this and that.

Mr. B. got up and walked around the campus. On the third time around, Balboa spied in the distance a strange wet unshuffling object. He climbed atop his chair (it was a high chair) and lo, below him was the Pacific Ocean. "Man, that ain't dew, " he cried aloud, "that is an ocean of much magnitude!"

...and instantly spread the news of this discovery to the world via the AP, UP and INS. (The rest is history.)

Now, it's beyond us just why Balboa should receive such acclaim for discovering the Pacific Ocean, which every Indian in the vicinity worth his scalp-lock knew was there all the time. We only relate this story in a sneaky effort to get around to a moral...

Moral: When you discover Budweiser, you'll discover that Budweiser is to beer as the Pacific is to oceans... the most!

Budweiser. KING OF BEERS

Six Races Feature Weekend Crew

MIT's crew season gets into full swing this week-end with six races to be decided on the Charles late Saturday afternoon. For the heavyweights, this will mark the season's opener, while the lightweights will be seeking revenge for defeats at the hands of Harvard last Saturday.

The heavies will race BU, Syracuse, and Harvard while the lightweights will be competing for the Rapkin Cup against Harvard and a n-d Dartmouth, with Yale an added starter. The freshman lightweights will start off the day's action, followed by the frosh heavies, then the two 2V races, and finally the varsity races, hopefully set for around six.

For the heavier, under the able leadership of Coach Jim McLachlin now in his 13th year as head crew coach, the race should be a good indication of what can be expected for the season. Nine lettermen, headed by Captain Dick Rieden, return from last year's shell which bowed to both Syracuse and Harvard. WTHS will again have their indispensable set up at the finish line in front of the MIT boathouse to bring the details of the race, making this an ideal spot to watch the climax of the Open House athletic activities.

Trackmen Lose in Contest With Brown

Last Saturday MIT suffered defeat in the Brown meet at Providence. Brown had a final score of 71 against Tech's 51.

In some events the team made a good showing. John Meyer '58 won the broad jump, and Bob Williamson took the javelin. Broad jumper John Meyer '58 was first in his event, and the pole vault was won by Vito Maglione '57. Tech also scored in their half mile event, where Bill Doffy '58 came in first.