Compton Cup Race Features Weekend On Charles River

This Saturday the ripples and washes of the Charles will be broken by the racing shells of M.I.T., Princeton, B.U., and Harvard in the second-first running of the annual Compton Cup Regatta. The activity should begin about 4:00 p.m., and an enthusiastic crowd is predicted by the members of the linksmen.

The prize boat, the Compton Cup, was first presented to the rival colleges in 1933 by the late Karl T. Compton, internationally known scientist and former member of the Princeton physics department and a Charter Trustee of that university, and the president of the institute before the succession of Dr. Killian. In 1935, at Princeton, the Tigers won in a walk-away. Harvard has won the trophy thirteen times, and Princeton seven, while the brave old Tech team has not managed to stroke its way to victory in a Compton since the origin of the affair.

This week-end looks no different on the surface, for the Harvard men have been hit by the Harvard bowmen over this season already; namely, last Saturday. However, the Big Eight Cup race revealed that MIT should expect more than a back-seat ride. As a matter of fact, our crew outdistanced BU's boat by an impressive margin by coming in third.

The varsity heavyweight crew has never tasted Dartmouth before, and the recent weapon that it is rumored that Dartmouth will apply in face of the varsity is more than seven years.

The boys from up in New Hampshire have been dingy considerable inside probably during the beginning of the season and have looked rather impac tive in early races. The outcome of the contest should interest to Princeton, but come to the banks of the Charles this Saturday expecting a surprise.

On the varsity last fall took third in the Compton, with Princeton and Harvard leading, and Dartmouth trailing. The Jayvees look somewhat the same as last year, and can be expected to puff their grinnings this week.

The freshman squad, recently deprived of all day by an A.D. meet, took another respectable third in the last year's Compton competition. This time it was Harvard the winner, with Princeton second and last year's contest winner Dartmouth which belonged to the lightweights.

Captains and stroke of the heavyweight crew, Dick Ehrman '67, has predicted that the crew, because of their late start on the water but also their rugged training, should show signs of rapid improvements as the season draws on.

Ties Prevail As Softball Ends

With perfect baseball weather prevailing for the past two weeks, MIT intramural Softball teams engaged in the bulk of their schedulers, locking out four of the eight leagues with unfinished play.

League IV and VII wound up in third place for the first time, necessitating playoffs for the leaders, while all four leagues with one game to go have the possibility of ending in a tie.

A.F. and SAE are the only teams at present to have won undated first places, both finishing undefeated.

In league I, Psi Lambda and Grad House B both claim 3-0 marks, but the two clash Sunday in a game that will both end the season and determine the champ. League II shows Sigma Phi Epsilon on top with 3-0, but Kappa Sigma and Phi Beta Epsilon both possess 2-1 records with a game each for the splinter.

Eps meet Phi Beta Epsilon in a game that will either determine the league leader or throw the race into three-way ties.

League III went to TEP by virtue of a 6-4 slate, while League IV is all tied up between Theta Chi, Student House, and Sigma Phi Epsilon. III, IV, all hold 1-1-1 in the last period.

Tech Golfers Win Two
While Losing Three

Under the tutelage of new coach John Burke, Tech varsity golf team has improved greatly this year. To date they have compiled a record of two victories and three setbacks, while all teams by 4-2 scores.

This represents quite an improvement over last season when the links men dropped all nine matches, while winning three individuals only on three occasions.

The Engineers copped the opener by edging Boston University, 4-2, on April 19, at the Oakley Country Club in Watertown. However, the appointment with Brown and Wesleyan last Wednesday went the other way, with the Beaver squad winding the tip on the short end of the same score.

On the Home Day, the Twelves, playing their last golf of the season, while paced by Soph Bob Rosenfeld's 74, blasted Brownies, 3½-½. Tufts edged the Barbeques, 4-0, on Tuesday in their last event.

Matt Mulhern '70, Jerry Carter '59, Joseph Storer '68, and Bobby O'Keefe '72, captains, are currently holding down the top four spots on the team.

Phi Gamma Delta has just about wrapped up league V, as they lead Boston University, 7-1, which has finished all its games. The Fiji spent a 3-0 mark with a game left, while Burton trails by 2-1. SAE clinched at least a tie for its league title in a nail-biter game by Dan Ehrman '57, over Baker A, and then went on to win its final contest and the crown. Behind the SAE 4-0 was the mark for the 3rd place.

League VII is in the exact same position as IV, as Beta Theta Pi, Phi Delta Theta, and Grad House B having all compiled 3-4 records.

Playoffs will determine the leader. East Campus is in practically the same fix that Burton is in, hoping that Grad House B loses its last game, thereby giving them the first place. But while Burton trails by a half game with 10 played complete, EC leads by a half. A Grad House win would tie up this league.

Playoffs for the league championships will get under way on Monday, with finalist competition, hopefully set to commence on Thursday or Friday of next week. Grad House A, TEP Club and Sigma Phi Epsilon should be the teams to watch, as their records indicate top notch club teams.
