Dean Rule Will Take Decisional Action if He Finds Voo Doo 'Indecent'

by Stephen M. Samuels

Dean Rule will retaliate immediately against any future issue of Voo Doo "which is his judgment is improper or indecent" by taking one or more of these four steps:

(a) Taking away Voo Doo's office space.
(b) Filing a complaint against the Editors in the Provost's office.
(c) Expelling or taking "other strong disciplinary action" against the Senior Board of Voo Doo.
(d) Suspending publication of Voo Doo, either temporarily or permanently.

This action was recommended in the report of the Ad Hoc Committee on Voo Doo and supported by Dean Rule in a letter to Voo Doo General Manager Robert L. Washburn. Both the report and the letter were released to the Tech Press Friday.

The Ad Hoc Committee on Voo Doo, appointed by Dean Rule to investigate the matter, is composed of 11 board members who have been charged with investigating the matter and making a recommendation to the Dean of Students. The Committee Chairman is Professor E. Neal Hartley, Humanities.

The opening statement of the report, which took place in response to the last Voo Doo issue, was that the committee had decided to investigate the matter and make a recommendation to the Dean of Students.
