Peace In Our Time

The dominant open house situation is rapidly coming to a head. As Dormcon prepares its final recommendations, a testing of importance is clearly perceivable among the student body. Members of the council itself, according to a two-level source, expect that its statusque-preserving proposals will be found unacceptable by the Administration. And a random sampling of student opinion reveals the consensus that "Whatever John T. has in the back of his mind will be put on the table, regardless."

In contrast to the partMany student antagonists last spring, the present crisis, as it were, has been brewing for months. Let us hope that if Dormcon's recommendations are rejected, the fight will not again be carried to Memorial Drive. It goes without saying that demoralized men are very unhappy with the situation.

The council's statement, as published today, deserves to be taken by all concerned as a carefully thought out representation of domi-
