The fall between the winter and spring seasons is traditionally the big look back upon the team's performances, evaluate them, and give reasons: their success or failure. Each year, when winter track is viewed in this light, one of the Institute's most serious athletic deficiencies is brought into focus, the lack of an indoor track.

A look at this winter's weather chart will confirm the effect of this on track team. During the first week of February the runners were able to run outsides. That Saturday a relay team competed in the Millrose Games in New York and finished only 1.5 seconds behind NYU, one of the best squads in the country. However, for the next two weeks the team was able to do any track work at all because of inclement weather. This reflected in the fact that they were able to edge a weak Northeastern aggregation by only one point and the following weekend they were beaten by 56-22. The pattern was similar for the following two contests.

It is true that the emphasis in Institute athletics has always been on track, not on winning squads. But Coach Gear had one or two boys under his tutelage and the list is expected to grow with the com-ming spring. Track is thus one of the largest sports, in terms of the number of participants at MIT. Secondly the purpose of this participation is not only to keep the physically fit and well being of the participants as well as recreation. To be the only fully year-round sport at Tech, provides this. However the trained coach, is greatly hindered by the present poor facilities at Rockwell.

The solution to the problem is simple. Once the basketball team has run out of the Cage, so will the hockey team. Track is thus one of the Institute's most serious athletic deficiencies brought into focus, the lack of an indoor track.

The track team couldn't have the whole Cage, said Coach Gear. This is inconvenient, and the facilities were not good enough to be used for the whole purpose of track. The solution to the problem is simple. Once the basketball team has run out of the Cage, so will the hockey team. Track is thus one of the Institute's most serious
