Thursday Is Day For Panel Discussion on Student's Motivation

A panel discussion, "Motivation of Students", will be presented at 7:30 P.M. on Thursday, April 17, 1958, in the Library Lounge, 414-416, by the MIT Orthodox Christian Fellowship. The panel will discuss the contents and the implications of the report, "The Extreming Freshman", by Dr. Leila Sussman and Mr. Gene N. Levine. The report was prepared last fall and published recently for the Institute Committee.

The panel will feature the authors of the report, and will include members of the faculty, administration, and medical department. Panelists will be Dr. Leila Sussman, a professor of sociology at Wellesley; Mr. Gene N. Levine, Dr. LeMoore White, chief psychiatrist in the MIT Medical Department; Dean Sperry, and Professor Ernst Levy, Faculty Resident in East Campus. The moderator will be Dean Fassett.

The discussion will center about the report submitted by Dr. Sussman and Mr. Levine, but will bring in many other aspects of the problems of motivation as seen by the speakers from the perspectives of their various backgrounds. The panel will be the first in a Motivation Series to be presented this year.

As Promotion Manager, Stanley Pessamit '58, stage chief of Tech Show '58.

The theme for Tech Show '58 has not yet been definitely decided, but it might be based on the Garden of Eden. However, such themes have generally been bent by unexpected snakes in the grass.
