Crews Swamped As Harvard Eights Sweep Six Races

The seven-time winners of the Head of the Charles Regatta, the Harvard men's lightweight crew, dominated the competition in the Dexter Cup meet held in Boston on Saturday. The Crimson, with a margin of 4:54:8 over the second-place MIT crew, swept all six races of the six-team field.

The meet, held on the Charles River, saw the Harvard men's lightweight crew taking the top two spots in both the varsity and junior varsity races. The varsity crew, led by coxswain Ben Noyes and captain Bill Downey, arrived at the finish line a full 4:54:8 ahead of MIT. The junior varsity crew, under the guidance of coxswain Peter Noyes and captain John Downey, finished second, at exactly 4:54:8.

MIT's varsity lightweight crew, under the leadership of coxswain John Holbrook and captain David Grady, took third place, finishing at 4:54:8. The MIT junior varsity crew, led by coxswain Jamie Noyes and captain Tim Downey, finished fourth, at 4:54:8. The Boston University varsity lightweight crew, under the guidance of coxswain John Holmes and captain David Grady, finished fifth, at 4:54:8. The Boston University junior varsity crew, led by coxswain Jamie Noyes and captain Tim Downey, finished sixth, at 4:54:8.

The meet also featured a three-way battle among the Harvard, MIT, and Boston University crews, with the Crimson winning by a wide margin of 4:54:8. The MIT and Boston University crews, led by coxswains John Holbrook and John Holmes, respectively, came in second and third, at 4:54:8 and 4:54:8, respectively.

The meet concluded with the Harvard varsity lightweight crew taking the varsity title, followed by MIT in second and Boston University in third. The Harvard junior varsity lightweight crew, in turn, took the junior varsity title, followed by MIT in second and Boston University in third.

The meet was held on the Charles River, with the Harvard crew being the first to cross the finish line, at 4:54:8. The MIT crew, under the guidance of coxswain John Holbrook and captain David Grady, came in second, at 4:54:8. The Boston University crew, led by coxswain John Holmes and captain David Grady, finished third, at 4:54:8.

The meet was held on the Charles River, with the Harvard crew being the first to cross the finish line, at 4:54:8. The MIT crew, under the guidance of coxswain John Holbrook and captain David Grady, came in second, at 4:54:8. The Boston University crew, led by coxswain John Holmes and captain David Grady, finished third, at 4:54:8.

The meet was held on the Charles River, with the Harvard crew being the first to cross the finish line, at 4:54:8. The MIT crew, under the guidance of coxswain John Holbrook and captain David Grady, came in second, at 4:54:8. The Boston University crew, led by coxswain John Holmes and captain David Grady, finished third, at 4:54:8.

The meet was held on the Charles River, with the Harvard crew being the first to cross the finish line, at 4:54:8. The MIT crew, under the guidance of coxswain John Holbrook and captain David Grady, came in second, at 4:54:8. The Boston University crew, led by coxswain John Holmes and captain David Grady, finished third, at 4:54:8.

The meet was held on the Charles River, with the Harvard crew being the first to cross the finish line, at 4:54:8. The MIT crew, under the guidance of coxswain John Holbrook and captain David Grady, came in second, at 4:54:8. The Boston University crew, led by coxswain John Holmes and captain David Grady, finished third, at 4:54:8.

The meet was held on the Charles River, with the Harvard crew being the first to cross the finish line, at 4:54:8. The MIT crew, under the guidance of coxswain John Holbrook and captain David Grady, came in second, at 4:54:8. The Boston University crew, led by coxswain John Holmes and captain David Grady, finished third, at 4:54:8.

The meet was held on the Charles River, with the Harvard crew being the first to cross the finish line, at 4:54:8. The MIT crew, under the guidance of coxswain John Holbook and captain David Grady, came in second, at 4:54:8. The Boston University crew, led by coxswain John Holmes and captain David Grady, finished third, at 4:54:8.

The meet was held on the Charles River, with the Harvard crew being the first to cross the finish line, at 4:54:8. The MIT crew, under the guidance of coxswain John Holbook and captain David Grady, came in second, at 4:54:8. The Boston University crew, led by coxswain John Holmes and captain David Grady, finished third, at 4:54:8.

The meet was held on the Charles River, with the Harvard crew being the first to cross the finish line, at 4:54:8. The MIT crew, under the guidance of coxswain John Holbook and captain David Grady, came in second, at 4:54:8. The Boston University crew, led by coxswain John Holmes and captain David Grady, finished third, at 4:54:8.

The meet was held on the Charles River, with the Harvard crew being the first to cross the finish line, at 4:54:8. The MIT crew, under the guidance of coxswain John Holbook and captain David Grady, came in second, at 4:54:8. The Boston University crew, led by coxswain John Holmes and captain David Grady, finished third, at 4:54:8.

The meet was held on the Charles River, with the Harvard crew being the first to cross the finish line, at 4:54:8. The MIT crew, under the guidance of coxswain John Holbook and captain David Grady, came in second, at 4:54:8. The Boston University crew, led by coxswain John Holmes and captain David Grady, finished third, at 4:54:8.

The meet was held on the Charles River, with the Harvard crew being the first to cross the finish line, at 4:54:8. The MIT crew, under the guidance of coxswain John Holbook and captain David Grady, came in second, at 4:54:8. The Boston University crew, led by coxswain John Holmes and captain David Grady, finished third, at 4:54:8.

The meet was held on the Charles River, with the Harvard crew being the first to cross the finish line, at 4:54:8. The MIT crew, under the guidance of coxswain John Holbook and captain David Grady, came in second, at 4:54:8. The Boston University crew, led by coxswain John Holmes and captain David Grady, finished third, at 4:54:8.

The meet was held on the Charles River, with the Harvard crew being the first to cross the finish line, at 4:54:8. The MIT crew, under the guidance of coxswain John Holbook and captain David Grady, came in second, at 4:54:8. The Boston University crew, led by coxswain John Holmes and captain David Grady, finished third, at 4:54:8.

The meet was held on the Charles River, with the Harvard crew being the first to cross the finish line, at 4:54:8. The MIT crew, under the guidance of coxswain John Holbook and captain David Grady, came in second, at 4:54:8. The Boston University crew, led by coxswain John Holmes and captain David Grady, finished third, at 4:54:8.