Dorm Con President Election Void
New Balloting To Be Next Week

The recent dormitory council president elections were declared invalid by a meeting of Dorm-Con and balloting will again be held next Tuesday to openly vote in the candidates for president, vice-president, junior and senior offices, election and development of various programs. The election was scheduled to be held on next Thursday but was postponed when it was discovered that the election had been declared invalid.

The recent dormitory council president elections were declared invalid by a meeting of Dorm-Con and balloting will again be held next Tuesday to openly vote in the candidates for president, vice-president, junior and senior offices, election and development of various programs. The election was scheduled to be held on next Thursday but was postponed when it was discovered that the election had been declared invalid.