There have been unpleasant experiences, including the apprehension of a "peeping tom" who certainly frightened some of our secretaries, and our involvement with various state and Canadian officials as a result of a suicide.

On several occasions members of the Security Force have helped prevent suicides in the Charles River, and the cruiser has been used an amazing number of times as an emergency ambulance.

Sometimes students come to the office seeking assistance because of their involvement in a quasi-criminal activity, and it is not uncommon for some students to view the Security Office as a kind of "legal aid bureau" when they are seeking advice and guidance on such matters as accidents, leases, and their involvement in various contractual matters.

While the frequently thoughtless acts of individuals create most of our work, the fact does remain that whatever measure of success has been achieved by the Security Force is due in large measure to the cooperation received not only from the administration, but also from the student body, the faculty and staff. Assuredly this cooperation not only is most welcome, but also it is most appreciated.

This week's Techretary is Miss Norma Humphries who works in the Publications Office. Norma is 22 and stands 5 feet 6 inches tall with blond hair and blue eyes. She lives at 123 Marlborough Street in Boston and told The Tech that her hobbies and interests include singing, travel, sailing, and summer sports in general. Of MIT men all Norma would say was "no comment." As usual, The Tech is still accepting applications for Techretary of the Week at its Walker Memorial Office.

WHAT D'YA HEAR IN THE BEST OF CIRCLES?

"Schaefer all around!"

Your serve? Serve Schaefer, the beer with the smooth round taste... never sharp, never flat.

Man, that's beer... REAL BEER!

It's America's Oldest Lager Beer.
