Tech To Defend Sailing Trophy

As a result of the New England Intercollegiate Sailing Association team racing “A” section preliminary at Coast Guard Academy, in New London last weekend, MIT, the defending champion, is in the finals for the Fowle Trophy. Under fluky conditions, Yale edged MIT for first place by one and a quarter points, in what must be regarded as an upset.

Having already been beaten by Yale, the Tech sailors had to defeat the Harvard team in order to qualify. With fresher winds than in the Yale race, MIT placed boats in one, two, three, five order at the finish line. This gave MIT 206 points to Yale’s 207½.

In the “B” section of the preliminaries, held on the Charles River last weekend, Boston University finished first and Coast Guard second. The final race for the team title will be held November 12th and 13th at Coast Guard, in which the four winners of the preliminaries will vie for the Fowle Trophy.

MIT has already beaten the BU team this year, but with Coast Guard sailing on home waters, and Yale also present, MIT will have a tough fight on its hands to retain title to the trophy.

Tomorrow and Sunday will be the sailing for the Danmark Trophy with MIT opposing eleven other teams at Coast Guard, in the Nineteenth Annual Invitation Dinghy Regatta.
