Unique Courses Offered
By Toby Ziede, '63

When someone mentions a dream course, the first thing that comes to the Techman's mind is most probably the Basket Weaving course offered at University of Miami. After looking over the scores of college newspapers that come into The Tech's offices each week, (from schools as near as BU or as far away as Auckland University, New Zealand), it appears that Miami's course is not unique.

The University of Minnesota is inaugurating two new courses that are noteworthy. One, given at the Duluth campus, is a short course in developing more international trade on the St. Lawrence Seaway. The other is a sixteen lesson home study course entitled "Your Trip to Europe." It covers "sightseeing, shopping, and travel techniques; and the cultural aspects, economy, government, and relations with the United States of the European countries." Its purpose is to develop "informed ambassadors to the United States while traveling abroad."

Among courses being offered by the Colorado School of Mines are "Moon Geology," and "Map Interpretation", described by the Ore digger as "Boy Scout mickey mouse with a jazzy beat." Closer to home, BU is offering a ten-week course in armed services defense contracting, in order to end unnecessary monetary losses to businesses performing government contracts, and which includes "techniques on selling, procurement policies, contract administration, and termination procedures."
