"That's Right, A Zoo Someplace In Australia," Delts Ask At 3 A.M.

The New Orleans Audubon Park Zoo.

After several subsequent letters and cables, an agreement was finally reached, by which the Melbourne Zoo would donate two kangaroos if the Delts would pay the air freight—$400. The next problem was raising $400. The Delts tried an advertising campaign—unsuccessful. Arson brought idea No. 3. A New Orleans brewer, Ken Kline, on its television ads. After negotiations, the brewer agreed to split the air freight costs.

On August 27, Wall and Onions, each eighteen months old, were formally presented to the New Orleans Zoo.

In Law Enforcement Now you, too, can become a policeman—if you transfer to Northeastern. Northeastern this fall is giving the only two courses in New England leading to a bachelor of science in law enforcement. The courses, "Administration of Justice" and "Criminal Investigation and Case Preparation," will be given in the evening by Major Leslie Williams, executive officer of the Massachusetts State Police.

SAIL ON, SAIL ON!

I suppose October 12 is just another day to you. You get up in the ordinary way and do all the ordinary things you ordinarily do. You have your breakfast, you walk your ccohol, you go to classes, you write home for money, you learn the credit plan in effect, you watch Hoody-Doody, and you go to bed. And do you give one little thought to the fact that October 12 is Columbus Day? No, you don't.

Nobody thinks about Columbus these days. Let us, therefore, pause for a moment and retell his ever-glorious, endlessly stirring saga...

Christopher Columbus was born in Genoa on August 25, 1451. His father, Ralph T. Columbus, was in the three-minute auto wash business in Genoa. Christopher was an odd little fellow as a child. He seemed to have no imagination and spent all his waking hours immersed in a book. Un fortunately, the lad did not sulk or brood. Young Columbus was left pretty much to his own devices. He was an avid reader—his father had given him a Bible and a port folio of ehristian authors. He read them all. He memorized them all. He even wrote a book of his own. Columbus grew restless. So when rumor reached him that there was another book in Barcelona, off he ran as fast as his little legs would carry him.

The rumor, alas, proved false. Our only book in Barcelona was Cesar's Cabi! by Scripture, which proved to be nothing more than a Spanish translation of Cabi! of the Heart.

Bitterly disappointed, Columbus began to dream of going to India where, according to legend, there were thousands of books. But the only way to go to India was on horseback, and Columbus and his horse could not walk or load. He was a poor lad and spent all his waking hours immersed in a book. Unfortunately, there was only one book in Genoa at the time—Care of the Horse by Aristotle—and after several months of reading Care of the Horse, Columbus grew restless. So when rumor reached him that there was another book in Barcelona, off he ran as fast as his little legs would carry him.

The rumor, alas, proved false. Our only book in Barcelona was Cesar's Cabi! by Scripture, which proved to be nothing more than a Spanish translation of Cabi! of the Heart.

Fired with his revolutionary new idea, Columbus raced to the nearest bookstore and bought a first edition of Francis Bacon's "The Stair CLING—A stair climbing mobility aid for a person confined to a wheelchair."
