Peace Corps To Give Placement Examination At Harvard Sunday

The Peace Corps will give a placement examination at Harvard University's Memorial Hall, 8:30 a.m., February 13. Memorial Hall is located at Kirkland and Cambridge streets in Cambridge.

In order to work with the Peace Corps on projects in Africa, Asia, and Latin America, this spring and summer, applicants must take the test and complete a questionnaire.

Two types of tests will be administered: one for applicants with bachelor's degrees who wish to be considered for positions as secondary-school or college teachers.

Professor Bloomfield writes: "In the end, space will affect everyone," writes Lincoln, "but at the moment the amount of space which is available to each of us is limited. In the future, however, the situation will be different. The amount of space which we can use for our purposes will increase as technology develops."

"Yet the need for more space is not immediately apparent. In the meantime, we must face the problem of how to use the space which we already have."
