Schell, Tracy Star In 'Judgment'...

By Tom Maugh '65

Tony trying to save not only the life of the German jaunets who he thought were the source of the German jaunets. He will present the award in New York City, and he will travel the world. Although there were some very great performances, the music was the most important. The music was the most important.

Music for the picture was won an Academy Award for the score of "Judgment." Although most of the songs were not taken from German lyrics, they were still very excellent and very moving. Also of particular signification was the use of the nursery rhymes which were used by Director Stanley Kramer. The nursery rhymes created a feeling of childlike innocence, adding greatly to the film.

I am a moving and excellent performance. It is, in my book, for the best picture of the year. If you have any interest in all of history, drama, philosophy, or just people in general, you will miss this picture, you will miss a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to see true greatness.

THE MANY LOVES OF THORWALD DOCKSTADER

When Thorwald Dockstader—Sophomore, epicure, and sportsman—first took up smoking, he did not simply choose the first brand of cigarettes that came to hand. He did what any Sophomore, epicure, and sportsman would do: he sampled several brands until he found the very best—a mild, rich, flavorful smoke—an endless source of comfort and satisfaction—a smoke that never palled, never failed to please—a smoke that any Sophomore, epicure, and sportsman could not resist for one small...fitter cigarette with an unsuspected taste—Marlboro, of course!

Similarly, when Thorwald took up girls, he did not simply choose the first one who came along. He sampled. First he dined an English Literature major named Elizabeth Barrett. Schwartz, a wisp of a girl with an accent that shimmered with a pale, unearthly beauty. Trippingly, trippingly, she walked with Thorwald upon the earth and sat with him behind a windward fence and listened to a corny and sighed sweetly and took out a little gold pencil and a little monochrome notebook and wrote a little poem:

"I will lie upon the shore,
I will be a dreamer,
I will feel the sun's warm,
Fountaining on my brow.

Thorwald's second date was with a physical education major named Peaches Glendorf, a broll of a girl with a ready smile and a size 18 neck. She took Thorwald down to the cinder track where they played four games of squash, six sets of tennis, 36 holes of golf, nine innings of one out, six chukkers of hockey, and a mile and a quarter of leapfrog. Then they went to a deluxe movie palace where they saw "The Year's Best!"—films I have not seen for years, and Thorwald came to a sensible decision. "I think," he said to himself, "that I will pick Marlboro, of course!

Thorwald's final date was with a golden-haired, green-eyed, red-lipped, full-voiced girl named Doris Bigelow. Total was not a mariner in anything as she was often called, "the wrighter's wrighter's wrighter's wrighter's wrighter's..." and she said, "I have a soul that is..." and she spouted off a little poem:

One of the Year's Best!

Marlboro, however, is rich enough for anybody. It takes a mighty good muffin to give you unfettered taste in a filter cigarette. That's the flavor you get in the famous Marlboro recipe from Richmond, Virginia. You get a bit to like.
