Four poets: Samuel Alberts, Barbara E. Forsch, Leonard Theran, and John Holmes, will read from their works, Tuesday, March 14, at 7:30 p.m. in the Library Lounge. A musical accompaniment will follow.

The reading will be in the style of poetry readings sponsored by the Department of Humanities. Last Tuesday, February 27, Theodore Weiss, visiting professor of English at Harvard, opened the series by reading from the poetry of Wallace Stevens, his works which have been published as selections from the Notebooks of the man that invented much of the modern poetry tradition. The series was inaugurated by Professor Theodore Woolf, Jr., professor of Humanities, with a talk on the process of writing. Students are asked to attend the readings to get a better understanding of the poetry and its importance.

The remaining readings will be on the works of Robert Frost, John Jay, and Reginald Blythe. They will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Library Lounge, April 14, 1962. Admission is free.
