MIT Tops Dartmouth

By Byrds

In Saturday’s qualifying event, the Techmen’s entry of Terry Crenburg, skipper, and Noel Adell, crew, were edged by Broad Institute of Cambridge, 4-2. Moser (SPE) scored 10 points, followed by Northern, Harvard, Connecticut, Colby, and Rhode Island. Boston College had qualified for the meet, but its crew failed to appear for the finals.

The Techmen will attempt to balance their record in their upcoming games with Harvard Nov. 3 and Holy Cross Nov. 10.

37 IM Harriers Race Despite Cold Weather

In spite of cold sloppy weather, seven teams turned out to participate in the first running of the annual cross country meet last Friday. Lending the thirty-seven finishers for the mile and three-quarter mile course were three graduate students representing the Cambridge Harriers, Churchil College, and an excellent time for the muddy course of 2:38. Trenn and Pat Connors, also of the Cambridge Harriers, took the second and third prize medals respectively.

The Techmen, led by Terry Crenburg, 49 and Blister Deary ’49 Theta Delta Chi on the competition, won the competition by beating out Chi Phi by a margin of 4 points.

The scoring was based on the first five finishers from each team with any team with less than five finishers receiving last place. The Techmen were content to take the race at the finish with the team with the lowest total running. The team standings were:

MIT’s Rugby Team received its second setback of the season, 24-4, last Saturday in a contest with the New York Rugby Club. The loss brought Tech’s record to 0-2-1.

The Engineers’ offense never really got going, but the New Yorkers took advantage of a strong wind and scored twice to clinch the victory. Earlier in the season, Tech lost to Dartmouth and tied Brown.

The Techmen will attempt to balance their record in their upcoming games with Harvard Nov. 3 and Holy Cross Nov. 10.
