College World

By Toby Zidke '83

College Entrance Requirements Hit By N.Y. Supreme Court Justice

Do's and don'ts to take honor courses in high school! Melvin Lesser, a native of New York City, thought it would be a good idea to discuss the topic of honor courses with his English teacher. "In general, I would say that it is a good idea to take honor courses. However, I would warn students to be careful not to overload their schedules. It is important to maintain a balanced workload that includes a variety of courses, both honors and non-honors. Additionally, students should consider their long-term goals and how different courses may impact their future college options. It is also important to consider the workload and time commitment of each course when deciding whether to enroll in honor courses. Overall, I would encourage students to weigh the benefits and potential challenges of taking honor courses carefully and make informed decisions based on their individual circumstances."