New Seminar To Be Given For Managers of Activities

By Ron Freshour

A new seminar in management of MIT student activities is being offered this term. The seminar was developed through consultations beginning in April of last year between the faculty and a subcommittee of the Outgoing Student Council.

The seminar is intended for students in management positions in activities and student government, and will be organized as a special section of an existing course, 15.11.

According to Steve Wanner '63, chairman of Activities Council, hour credits for the seminar will be counted toward the student's curriculum. Students in these courses should enroll as listeners and attend the seminar regularly. The new seminar will be drawn from activities, not corporations. The first project of the new section will be a market survey and the value of Mit publications.

The intention of the new section, adds Wanner, is to give immediately useful experience to student managers as well as provide the same long-range education benefits as the regular section. Professors Grebner and Slone, in charge of the seminar, feel that the special section of students active in management will enrich the course and give it added meaning.

MIT Community to Receive Free Sabin Vaccine

By John L. Schwartz

Sabin oral polio vaccine will be distributed at no charge to all students, staff and faculty next Wednesday and Thursday.

In addition to Massachusetts General Hospital and several hospitals around the Med school, the vaccine will be dispensed by the Medical Department of various chemical and distiller water in the Institute dining halls.

Dr. Samuel D. Clark, Associate Director of the Medical Department, advises that, "If people want the vaccine, whether or not they need it, they are welcome to take it. The fact is that the vaccine will fill out a short informational approach which we have been using for some time." Howard University is distributing the Sabin vaccine to students, and the hospital is also distributing it. However, persons not on the active polio immunization program will have to pay a $1.00 charge.

There are three types of Sabin to combat the three types of polio. A demonstration against polio is effective against type I polio. Administration of types II and III vaccines will take place in March-May.

Bursar's Card Misstates NRSA Fee Requirement

Contrary to the implication of the Bursar's card, non-resident student NRSA fees are based on their parents' or relatives' net worth and do not pay for the compulsory 52.5% non-resident student fee.

Students who do live with parents or relatives will have to pay the fee in full, however.

Dean Fess made this statement in response to the concerns of non-resident students about the requirement of fees, which was interpreted to mean non-resident students are not living in MIT dormitories or istitutions, which is not correct.

The revision of the description was made by Bursar W. A. Haslam, as he put it, "to clarify the situation." According to Dean Fess, the description makes non-resident students who are living in MIT dormitories or institutions pay their fees.

MIT may prepare transcripts listing students' participation in extracurricular activities during their tenure at MIT.

The new transcript, which would supplement MIT's present academic transcript, would list a student's participation in activities.

The new transcript is being studied by the Activities Council, and will be implemented hopefully in the fall of this year.

The Board, composed of Dean Murch and Holde, several professors, and some students, was formed by the Board to improve the transcript, and will be responsible for the inclusion of such information.
