TCA Asked To Investigate Charter Flight Sponsorship

The Technology Community Association has been asked to investigate the possibility of sponsoring charter flights in its community in coming years. Mr. Larry Bishoff, of the Office of Student Affairs, who made the request, stated that TCA turned down a similar suggestion last year.

The Incomm Entrepreneurs Committee is also investigating, to determine whether the interests of the MIT community would be best served if the flights were sponsored by a service group, or if they should be sponsored by individual entrepreneurs. However, Stephen B. Miller '64, chairman of the committee, stated that his group is still concentrating most heavily on the student entrepreneur situation in general.

Organizers of charter flight groups fly new bills by special committee consisting of Dean Wadleigh, Mr. Bishoff, two members of the Undergraduate Association, and two members of the graduate student body. The Institute cannot enforce monop- oly, however, it can select those persons to whom it grants the privilege of using MIT facilities in their enterprise. In any case, MIT does not assume responsibility for the activities of such entrepreneurs.

When questioned on TCA's intentions, Ron Randall, president of the association, stated, "We're interested."
