Construction to begin this fall
New overpass planned for Charleston

A $5,500,000 overpass and one of the world's largest traffic oval are planned by the Metropolitan District Commission to eliminate a major Boston bottleneck.

The bottleneck is the Storrow Drive-Charlestown-Fenway complex. The construction will start this fall, with completion scheduled for about a year later.

The highway will run between Charlestown East and Charlestown West on an overpass above the Riverbend.

To ease the daily flow of more than 200,000 vehicles, the Commission chose plans detailing a four-lane, single-overpass, motorists leaving Storrow Drive to study the oval's design.

Students may join Inscmm subcommittees
(Continued from Page 4)
trouble before it starts. Finance Board has the ultimate financial responsibility if an activity shows a deficit.

The board reviews financial reports from all activities—before a year be met, as often as once a month for the large activities.

(4) Negotiating the size of the grant which the Undergraduate Association receives from the Institute.

Next year is in the planning stage right now. The projects to that time last year have been completed and will be outlined.

Among these projects are freshman orientation, Christmas concerts, the Intercollegiate Conference, the Junior Science Symposium, and Open House.

Many of these programs are of an annual nature. Many more are of the "excellent-tis-year-but let's try something else next year type. It is this latter type that is of immediate concern.

The Executive Committee invites your comments and suggestions, and encourages that the standing and special subcommittees are now in the formative stages. Prospective committee chairmen of the Finance Board members will be interviewed Sat ture, the Lee Westerner will conduct its elections next Tuesday.