Green paper price war in Colorado aimed at getting students' heads

It is a well-known economic reversal of this economic trend that the cost of being a student at the University of Colorado, for example, were to go up. This applies not only to ever-increasing major expenses (such as tuition, room, and board), but also to minor items, such as the cost of a haircut. Occasionally, however, the turn of events will cause a minor expense to rise. For instance, a minor expense is the cost of a haircut. Occasionally, however, such an expense will rise. The reason for the rise is that the cost of labor is going up due to increased unionization. The result is a price war.

The Magic Number

Although it is rare for students to have a difficult time with the price of smaller items, such as textbooks, it is even rarer for them to be in a position to control the larger expenses such as tuition. The latest college to resolve the magic tuition level of $1700 is Tufts University. The new tuition will go into effect on April 17 in the fall semester, 1964 (and students are given until May 15 to pay it).

Said Tufts President Nils Y. Wessell, "For Tufts and for many other institutions, increased tuition in 1964 is imperative or we are to face the future from a financially responsible position.

"While I regret that the unusually increasing costs of higher education necessitate the increase in 1964, I am pleased that continued and growing giving to Tufts will enable us to limit the increase to a level much lower than would be the case if it were not for the generous voluntary support of alumni, parents, corporations, foundations, and friends.

Most of additional tuition will go toward faculty salaries.
