Proposed student center library

We urge Institute officers to act favorably on the plans for the student center. Implementation would do much to improve the usefulness of the new center. The Committee on Student Environment's plan for new dormitories in West Campus will greatly increase the demand for nearby library facilities in that area.

Another advantage of the proposed library is that it would house the Reserve books for all courses, selected reference materials, and about $5000 for browsing.

Out for blood

Representatives of APO and TCA will be contacting students next week seeking donations to send to the MIT Blood Drive. As long as MIT participates in the Red Cross program, each member of the MIT community can receive blood without cost for one year hence. Last year's new program produced the second largest total in its history. We hope that this year more undergraduates will donate blood and MIT and the community benefit from the generosity.

FOOTNOTES

by Bill Judnick

Taxes have been making news, enough to warrant a mention. The student tax is exempt but not his wife.

Letters to The Tech

Posters-taking assailed

To the Editor:

During the last two weeks of the Classes of '65 Winona's conducted a sales campaign for a jointly sponsored '66 poster. Assailed as a gimmick it hoped for success of this campaign was largely dependent on the ad

Advertisements for political posters and those with exceptional art or caricatures fail prey first. There is sense in the advertising and for those who are interested in the area, a particular campaign, the de

Letters Inside Insconn

UAP recommends criteria for selection of candidates

By Jerry Luebbers, UAP

There are now three UAP candi-

ers. Chances are you will meet one or more of them in your room, at the dormitory. The Tech's political branches, the Student Action,

Finally, there is a misconception

I would like to dispel. It is sometimes said that the UAP is the student representative of the student viewpoint to the administration. People believe that if a student performs one or two cases which will describe adequately. Student opin-

There is some truth in the decision, but to the extent that the student cannot call on the fact that many students have ac-

How can a person be evaluated in terms of these abstract notions? By his platform and personal presentation.

His ideas should sound sound and well thought out. His comments on current student opinion should be appropriate. He should be able to explain his general program and its philosophy (to avoid in a brief statement, his "grandiose panacea," "stomach anodyne," "strengthens," etc.).

He should admit a sound position, but add an invention strictly his own, one which you basically disagree, do. the person it is a man, such that you feel that you sit down, and asking for support could be worth ed.

Or does he antagonize? The basic element is subjective in the analysis of any candidate. On the other hand, his co-workers, those who will be effecting the decision, will be faced with the decision of selecting a chairman. Chances are you will not have a receptive to new ideas. He must be decisive; He must be

The basic principle is that of a person first, a specific pro-

Deadline for candidates: April 1. Undoubtedly, the candidates vying for your support will have an opinion to the proposed library last spring. "There is a question in my mind if we don't do it now. We must do it now.

More of the future

9. How can a person be evaluated if he is a harder time trying to DROP a course after the deadline this term. Do on the look out for a strict program set by the "powers that be" shortly. The formula used to compute the amounts of sal-

Commons for all? For those who have difficulty in figuring out the reasons un-

Commons is again offered:

Peanuts appears daily and Sunday in the Boston Herald.