Galbraith, Slezack, and Pearson among LSC lecturers this term

Seven lectures and a concert will be presented by LSC this term. Robert Fronamer '66, chairman of the Lecture Subcommittee, recently announced the schedule for these free events.

Next Tuesday B. F. Skinner, research psychologist at Harvard and author of 'Walden Two,' will speak. The title of his lecture is 'Utopia Now?' coinciding with the theme of his recent book, 'The Great Crash.'

The economist John Kenneth Galbraith will speak a week later on March 10. Former United States Ambassador to India, Mr. Galbraith has written several books, including 'The Affluent Society' and 'The Great Crash.' Sir Gordon Sutherland will appear the following Tuesday, March 17. He is the director of the National Physical Laboratory of England, and was one of a delegation of British scientists recently invited by the mainland Chinese to visit scientific and technological establishments there. He has brought back some colored slides and a movie film with which he will illustrate his lecture.

Kreuger events

The remaining events will be held in Kreuger also at 8:00 p.m. On Wednesday, March 18, Sabiwill will present a season's guitar concert. Free tickets will be distributed the day before the performance.

LSC will hold a week's worth of lectures in March. Carl de Suze, a foreign correspondent who has a morning show on WGBH radio, Mr. de Suze will present his illustrated lecture, "Empires Revisited, the New Look of Europe."
