MIT AA provides strong leadership; athletics are sponsored on four levels

The Athletic Association discusses future plans with The Director of Athletics, Ross Smith. Left to right: Mr. Director, Dick Lucy, Bill Bovd, President; Dave Carrier, and Fred Souk.

The diversified, well-rounded program of the Secretary of the Council. Many dormitory and fraternity organizations are given to sports activities that will carry over to enjoyment of leisure time in later life.

The intramural program in II different sports affords competition from class to class in developing proficiency through a team effort. Many take part in the accomplishments of the many teams that represent the Institute.

The intramural program is entirely run by the students under the leadership of the Intramural Council. Many dormitory and fraternity organizations compete in the contests afforded by the Council. Though some may say it is too competitive, I believe it is a valuable experience for the team, coach, and students.

The club program, under the direction of the Secretary of the Activities Council, has received both favorable and unfavorable feedback. As an illustration of the material that the Activities Newsletter publishes.

The present climate of opinion towards athletics is that they should be handled. Also Course 19ers, or anyone else that might have positions of financial responsibility in the Association. The Treasurer and Book Exchange Directors have been oriented towards functions that are not required for attendance or participation in other activities. The Fiscal Board, to supervise the use of the under-graduate athletics funds, has been oriented towards functions that are of great interest to the members of the Activities Council.

The intramural program is the ideal activity. TCA is responsible for the student administration of MIT athletics through the Athletic Association Executive Committee, the team captains, managers, team last name, and the athletic directors.
