Sailors 1st in Northeast; North Americans next stop

By Ron Bronck

Tech's women won two more games this week, defeating Tufts 5-1 and amassing 10 points, while dropping only one to New Hampshire 6-3. Having won four out of the last five games, the team has brought the season's tally to 5 wins and 3 losses.

The New Hampshire game, played Monday, was only the first game of the season as New Hampshire rallied the last five games, but was defeated 2-0 by MIT in the second game of the season.

The game was played on Thursday, a hard-fought game that saw the New Hampshire team taking a 2-0 lead. The game was finished in the fourth period, with the final score being 2-0. The two teams will meet again next week for the deciding game of the season.

The season's first loss was to Trinity.

By Peter Stcncker

The coach said that the team was working on their passing, and was looking forward to the next game.

The team's next game is against Williams, who are currently in third place in the league. The game will be played on Saturday, and is expected to be a tough match.

Light crews smash Navy, Penn

By Neal Gilman

The MIT sailing team won two more games this week, defeating the US Coast Guard Academy 8-3 and defeating their previous opponents. The team is currently ranked fourth in the Northeastern Conference (NEICE).

The team's next game is against the US Coast Guard Academy, who are currently ranked second in the conference. The game will be played on Saturday, and is expected to be a tough match.

Lacrossermen win 2 more

By Neal Gilman

The lacrosse team won two more games this week, defeating Tufts 5-1 and defeating their previous opponents. The team is currently ranked fourth in the Northeastern Conference (NEICE).

The team's next game is against the US Coast Guard Academy, who are currently ranked second in the conference. The game will be played on Saturday, and is expected to be a tough match.

Tennis squad wins over Trinity 6-3

By Neal Gilman

The tennis team won two more games this week, defeating Tufts 5-1 and defeating their previous opponents. The team is currently ranked fourth in the Northeastern Conference (NEICE).

The team's next game is against the US Coast Guard Academy, who are currently ranked second in the conference. The game will be played on Saturday, and is expected to be a tough match.

Ruggers win two of four

By Larry King

Rugby is a fast, rough, hardhitting game. It's a sport that involves a lot of physical contact and how to be seen is to be understood. The easiest way to visualize rugby is to imagine a football game in which, instead of playing stop after stop and running the ball for yard lines, teams line up against each other and push the ball down the field, coming in on defense and tackles. The other method is to see the game as a free-for-all, where the opponents try to catch the ball and break away from their opponents to score. Rugby is a fast-paced, high-scoring game with quick ball changes.

The MIT rugby team combines all of these elements, with a fast-paced, high-energy game that keeps the crowd on the edge of their seats. The team is currently ranked fourth in the Northeastern Conference (NEICE), and is expected to be a tough match.

For more information on the MIT rugby team, please visit their website at mitrugby.com.