Bull Moose Club formed to give expression of liberal Republicanism

The MIT Bull Moose Club, formed on campus last spring, will meet Thursday, October 1, in Room 5-136. Massachusetts Assistant Attorney General Leonard Cohen will address the club.

Formed "to expand the ideas of liberal Republicanism," the Bull Moose Club plans to take an active part in the fall election. At their first fall meeting the club decided to support neither major candidate in this year's presidential election. It did resolve to work for the election of liberal Republicans campaigning for lesser candidates and to expand the ideals of liberal Republicanism.

The primary purpose of the club was stated as the strengthening of the "right" kind of Republican Party; that is a party free of influence from the "radical right."

Those interested in the views or activities of the Bull Moose Club may obtain further information from the club secretary, Richard Waterhouse '46.

MORGAN-JONES new Varsity Stripes... coordinates cum laude!

Great new idea. Great fun. Lusty terry towels in your school colors. And blankets and bedspreads to go with! Coordinated. Collegiate. Commotion-provokin'! What a way to wow the campus! So go buy yours. And wow 'em.

Tech hosts conference

Dedication of the Green Earth Sciences Center will be preceded by an International Conference on the Earth Sciences.

The conference, running from Wednesday until Friday morning, will include talks by many of the world's leading scientists in the field.

The conference will include sections on all of the areas of earth sciences. Two sessions, on Thursday afternoon and Friday morning, will deal with technical presentations on "The Solid Earth." Wednesday afternoon's session will be devoted to atmospheric motion.

The conference will close with the dedication ceremony for the center, followed with an open house.

Wednesday morning sessions, preceded by Dong Streets, professor at Harvard's School of Public Health, and Patrick Hurley of the College of the University of Toronto and Raymond Hide of the Institute, will cover facets of the composition of the earth. Dedication speaker will be Dr. Roger Revelle, soon to become a professor at Harvard's School of Public Health. Conference Chairman, Provost Charles H. Townes.
