Dr. James R. Killian, Chairman of the Corporation, recently addressed an alumni gathering on the need for educational reform.
His speech, delivered before the MlT Club of Central Florida, specifically dealt with a number of programs, especially for Educational Services Incorporated, a non-profit organization of which Dr. Killian is the chairman. He stated that approximately 5,500 teachers are now using material from the Physical Sciences Study Committee, which was developed under the sponsorship of ESI. Dr. Killian further commented that PSCC demonstrated that curricular reform was feasible, and that ESI began three years ago to develop a comprehensive program in this area to run from kindergarten through the twelfth grade. He said that "Social studies has been an albatross, instructed amalgam of history, civics, sociology, geography, and what all, tied together by a wastebasket full of information and the social sciences and humanities.
He also stated that further research and development are needed not only for the elementary grades but also for the secondary grades and that ESI is coordinating the program is being sponsored jointly by the Humanities Department, the Course 21 Office, the Lecture Series Committee, and the American Committee for Irish Studies. Professor Emmet Laurin of MIT is coordinating the program for Irish Studies.
The festival opens this Friday evening at 8:30 in Kresge Little Theater with the presentation of three one-act plays. They are
"Full Moon in March" by Willam Butler Yeats, "A Fiord for Bridge" by Denis Johnston, and
"The Voice of the Man" by Mary Manning. These three plays will be given again Saturday evening at 8:30. Earlier Saturday afternoon at 3:00, John Accelerator, Professor of Modern Irish, Literature and History at Harvard, will speak on "Daderg's Hostel" and James Joyce's "The Dead." Then at 2:30 on Sunday afternoon Russell B. Conwell of Boston's Museum of Fine Arts will give an illustrated talk on "The Paintings of Jack B. Yeats." Fifty-two of Yeats' paintings have been on display in the May-don Gallery since January 13 and will be there until February 17.
Directly following will be a lecture by the Irish playwright and author Denis Johnston on Dublin's "Gate Theater." Closing the program Sunday evening at 8:00 will be a private preview of the film "Finnegan's Wake," produced and directed by Mary Elen Bute. The film is based on Joyce's "The Dead."
The closing of the festival on Sunday, March 11, will be at 7:15 p.m. in the Little Theater with "Dervorguilla's Hostel" and James Joyce's "The Dead."

Dr. James R. Killian, Chairman of the Corporation, recently addressed an alumni gathering on the need for educational reform.
His speech, delivered before the MIT Club of Central Florida, specifically dealt with a number of programs, especially for Educational Services Incorporated, a non-profit organization of which Dr. Killian is the chairman. He stated that approximately 5,500 teachers are now using material from the Physical Sciences Study Committee, which was developed under the sponsorship of ESI. Dr. Killian further commented that PSCC demonstrated that curricular reform was feasible, and that ESI began three years ago to develop a comprehensive program in this area to run from kindergarten through the twelfth grade. He said that "Social studies has been an albatross, instructed amalgam of history, civics, sociology, geography, and what all, tied together by a wastebasket full of information and the social sciences and humani-dies. He also stated that further research and development are needed not only for the elementary grades but also for the secondary grades and that ESI is coordinating the program is being sponsored jointly
by the Humanities Department, the Course 21 Office, the Lecture Series Committee, and the American Committee for Irish Studies. Professor Emmet Laurin of MIT is coordinating the program for Irish Studies.
The festival opens this Friday evening at 8:30 in Kresge Little Theater with the presentation of three one-act plays. They are
"Full Moon in March" by Wil-
lam Butler Yeats, "A Fiord for Bridge" by Denis Johnston, and
"The Voice of the Man" by Mary Manning. These three plays will be given again Saturday evening at 8:30. Earlier Saturday afternoon at 3:00, John Accelerator, Professor of Modern Irish, Lit-terature and History at Harvard, will speak on "Daderg's Hostel" and James Joyce's "The Dead."
Then at 2:30 on Sunday after-
noon Russell B. Conwell of Boston's Museum of Fine Arts will
give an illustrated talk on "The
Paintings of Jack B. Yeats."
Fifty-two of Yeats' paintings have been on display in the May-don Gallery since January 13 and
will be there until February 17.
Directly following will be a lecture by the Irish playwright and
author Denis Johnston on Dub-
lin's "Gate Theater." Closing the
program Sunday evening at 8:00
will be a private preview of the
film "Finnegan's Wake," produced and directed by Mary El-
en Bute. The film is based on
Joyce's "The Dead."
The closing of the festival on Sunday, March 11, will be at 7:15 p.m. in the Little Theater with "Dervorguilla's Hostel" and James Joyce's "The Dead."